THE SPRINGFIELD-DRURY CIVIC ORCHESTRA

Founded in 2005, the Springfield-Drury Civic Orchestra is southwest Missouri’s regional civic orchestra. Now in our 14th season, the SDCO has become an integral part of the rich musical community and tradition of the area.

The SDCO is a full symphony orchestra with nearly 100 members comprising university students, professional musicians, and volunteers drawn from the greater Springfield community. We are also the only regional arts organization that includes the performance of nontraditional music in our mission including newly composed works, less frequently heard masterworks, and ancient music.

The SDCO works to complement rather than compete with other community music organizations, and this collaborative spirit allows the orchestra to function as a supportive meeting ground for musicians and music lovers alike. The SDCO was a winner in the national American Prize Competition and has collaborated with numerous regional artists and organizations including the Springfield Symphony, Ballet, and Regional Opera.

As we look ahead to this exciting season, we are actively seeking partners who share our passion for the arts. Your support will enable us to continue our tradition of excellence and further enrich the cultural landscape of the region.

Advertising (Business)

A great way to support the arts and reach our community! Your ad placement will benefit from our collaborative marketing with the Springfield Regional Opera and will appear in all SDCO and SRO event programs during the coming season including operas, large orchestra concerts, and special events. The typical opera/orchestra audience comprises established professionals and retirees with significant income as well as a strong collegiate and early professional presence. Note-at the halfpage level and above, advertisers will also be mentioned on either the SDCO or SRO social media pages.
